THE OLD DOMINION SAFE.

Capital.

The Maynard Issue in New York-Massa chusetts, Iowa, and Wisconsin Doubtful-Ohio Probably Republican.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, D. C., November 4-The elections which are to occur in a number of States next Tuesday will be watched with keen interest by the members of the Senate and House as well as the President and the leading men of his administration. This being the second time that the country has entrusted Mr. Cleveland with the highest office within the gift of the people it is naturally expected that those in power shall wield influence sufficient to hold in line all that has been Democratic at least, even if no, gains are made. From the best in some of the States the vote is apt to be comparatively light, inasmuch es there The elections which are to occur in a be comparatively light, inasmuch as there rehas not been sufficient agitation to bring out the sovereigns. New York, Virginia, Massachusetts, and Iowa, with Wisconsin coming in also for much attention. With the exception of Virginia and New York, the States named are usually Republican, and it is only in off years, or when there is some unexpected internal upheaval, that the Democrats have any chance of carrying them.

NEW YORK.

According to the general belief among the politicians here Virginia and New York will go Democratic. In the Empire State the majority is uncertain because the Mugwumps and some of the inverse, to say nothing of several treacherous newspapers calling themselves Democratic, have been stabbing the ticket on account of the nomination of Judge Maynard for judge of the Court of Appeals. It is charged too, that they have done their best to get rome word from the President so that the friends and supporters would be seen in stabbing Maynard, but they seen unable to the president so that the friends and supporters would be seen in stabbing the ticket on the president so that the friends and supporters would be seen unable to the seen the seen that the friends and supporters would be seen unable to the seen the seen that the friends and supporters would be seen the seen the seen that the seen that the seen the seen the seen the seen that the seen the seen that the seen that the seen the seen the seen that the seen that the seen that the seen the seen that the seen that the seen the seen that the seen that the seen that the seen that the seen the seed to said declined by the receiver is the cattery base derived to said declined by the receiver is the cattery of the services?

against the regular tool of the party. He remembers how loyally Tammary, the Kings county Democracy, and the Hill Democracy in the State sphorted him last year; and the talk is that all of the so-called factions in Yew York are this year pulling together in complete harthe no trouble in electing the ticket.
Much will depend on the feeling among the workingmen who are out of employment on account of the depressed state of the industries.

MASSACHUSETTS.

MASSACHUSETTS.

From what can be gleaned here the Democrats do not expect much this year in Massachusetts. They are making a gallant right against great olds, but will not be surprised if Greenhaige is elected Governor over John E. Russell. It must be remembered that the Russell running now is not the present Governor. They are different men, and are no relation to each other. Governor Russell, on account of great personal popularity, was three times elected Governor of the Old Bay State, but no one else on the ticket with him was elected. Even Mr. Cleveland last year lost Massachusetts by a heavy figure. Being naturally a Republican State, it will be an agreeable surprise should Massachusetts go Democratic this year.

VIRGINIA.

VIRGINIA. The result in Virginia will be watched with ususual interest this year on account of the loud claims of the Populists as to what they will do. Here and there a man and brother has been encountered in Washington who believes that the Democrats will have trouble in pulling through, but that man has been looked upon as a curiosity. The returning Populists—such ardent men as Colonel Tom Patterson, of Colorado; Jerry Simpron Patterson, of Colorado; Jerry Simpron Patterson, of Colorado, and others from the "wild and woelly West" have admitted in Washington that they have not the remotest lice of defeating the Democrats. The result in Virginia will be watched Virginia will go through with a comfortable majority. As to what it will be opinions differ, for much will depend on the stay-at-home vote, and the part the Republicans take in the contest, and whether or not they will support the Populist ticket or split and cast a considerable vote for the Democrats, inasmuch as they have no ticket of their own in the field. Many of the most prominent Republicans who have lately visited Washington have been heard to declare that as between the Democrats and the Populists they would prefer the former, and especially is this true of those who happen to be possessed of property. They are not anxious to rip up the judiciary of the State and place on the bench the untried men who would be brought out should the Populists by any hook or crook carry the day. That would prove too costly an experiment, and realizing that the new party has see few men of experience and recognized ability in its ranks, they will prafer if they vote at all to support their old-time enemy, the Democratic party.

ANTHERIECTION POP PLAINT.

ANTE-ELECTION POP PLAINT.

Comment has been made here on the ante-election statements of the weak-gilled managers of the Populist concern in Virginia that they expect to carry the State, but in all probability will be cheated out of the fruits of their victory by the Democrats, who are in full possession of the election machinery of the State. The same old story has often been heard. It was the cry last year in Georgia of the Tom Watson eranks; it was heard in Florida, and it was the song of the Kolb crowd in Alabama. Among politicians in this city such talk is believed to mean that the "Jeams" Field party know in advance they have no earthly chance of winning, and it would seem that such base slanders upon the wealth, intelligence, and honesty of the old commonwealth ought to arouse the ire of the ANTE-ELECTION POP PLAINT. monwealth ought to arouse the ire of the best people, and cause such a turnout at the poils that the maligners of the fair fame and name of Virginia woud never forget the drubbing given them.

It is conceded here that local or State is conceded here that local or state issues are such in Virginia that even if men may differ regarding the policy of the Administration on the financial question there is too much at stake to be dividing when the judiciary has to be chosen and State officers have to be elected.

OHIO. It is thought here that McKinley will be elected Governor of Ohio. Neal is considerably handicapped on account of the lukewarmness of the opposing Demothe lukewarmness of the opposing Demo-cratic faction in the State.

When the Republicans carry Ohio again next Tuesday it will be something like the Dutch taking Holiand. It is gener-ally tneir "meat," and they will be quite apt to bag the game again this year. Ohio is a strong protection State, and their candidate is the most ardent advo-cate of the highest rates of duty. It would be strange should he fail to win the election, and the belief is that he will have a large majority. will have a large majority.

IOWA AND WISCONSIN. Iowa is the most doubtful State in the list this year by long odds; and opinions differ as to the probable result. Governor Boles, a usually strong man, is running for a third term, and the Legislature that will elect a successor to Senator Wilson is also to be chosen. It will be a lively fight, and it is hard to predict which side will win.

will win.

Wisconsin is also in much doubt, and the predictions regarding control of the Legislature are that the fight will be close.

The Populists make much noise about silver being the issue, but this matter will hardly out any figure in either Wisconsin or lowa, for the Senators and Representatives from both States, regardless of party, voted to unconditionally repeal the Sherman law; and yet the Populists are making no direct fight in either State. The fight is really between the old parties.

United States Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court of the United states has heard oral argument upon, and has taken under consideration a case says a Washington letter to the Baltimore Sop. In 1887 J. Catlett Gibson, then United States Attorney for the Bastern District of Virginia, brought suit against William H. Peters, receiver of the Exchange National Bank of Norfolk, to recover $6.60 which he claimed to be due him on account of legal services in connection with the prosecution of a suit by the receiver against one R. H. McDonald, which resulted in the collection of $120,000 from the said McDonald. Judge Hughes, of the United States District Court, gave Gibson judgment against the receiver July 18, 1883, for $5.000, but Judge Bond, of the Circuit Court, differed from his brother on the beach, and the case came to the Supreme Court.

From the briefs in the case it appears that Gibson offered his services to Receiver Peters, claiming the right to prosecute the suit against McDonald under section $89, R. S., as follows: "All suits and proceedings arising out of the provisions of law governing national

The plaintiff, Mr. I. Catlett Gibson, argued the case in his own behalf, assisted by R. W. Hughes, son of the judge, who gave him judgment for half the amount of his claim. For the receiver appeared Messrs. Dudley and Michener, and T. S. Garnett. In the course of the argument it was stated that this was the first time these questions were ever presented to the court for consideration. With respect of the practice in such cases it was said that from the foundation of the national-banking system until this time receivers, by and with the approval of the Comptroller, have employed private counsel to represent them in the business and litigation of the trusts, and these private counsels have been paid for their services by the comptrollers.

THE PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION. Setting Aside the Thirtieth as Thanks-

the extra session of Congress. The text of the proclamation is as follows:

"While the American people every day remember with praise and thanksgiving the Divine goodness and mercy which have followed them since their beginning as a nation, it is fitting that one day in each year should be especially devoted to the contemplation of the blessings we have received from the hand of God, and to the grateful acknowledgment of His loving kindness.

It is expected that Mr. Hoge will come to Washington from San Francisco to explain the nature of the charges against his character. His recall, if it can be termed such, was sent by the President.

The Vacant Judgeship, He Thinks, Should Go to Some Younger Man.

(By telegraph to the Dispatch.) WASHINGTON, D. C., November 4.— Senator Ransom, of North Carolina, to-day confirmed the statement that he had been tendered by the President the posi-tion of United States Circuit Judge for the Fourth Judicial District, embracing the States of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, and North and South West Virginia, and North and South Carolina, made vacant by the death of Judge Bond, and that he had declined the honor. Mr. Ransom is sixty-eight years old and has been in the sixty-eight years old and has been in the Semate twenty-two years. He holds that his duty to the State and the people who have honored him requires him to remain in the Senate, and he insists that the judgeship should go to some younger man. Mr. Ransom, in talking about the appointment with some friends to-day, said it would be manifestly unfair to others for him, at his age, to accept such a place, from which he would so soon have to be retired.

PRESIDENTIAL ROMANCES.

Inconsistency of Stories Touching the Alleged Interference of Cleveland with State Affairs.

(By telegraph to the Dispatch.)

WASHINGTON, November 4.—President Cleveland celebrated the adjournment of Congress by going squirret shooting to-day. Secretary Gresham went with him. They spent the morning in a strip of woods about four miles northeast of Woodley, where good squirrel shooting is to be had.

Both Secretaries Lamont and Herbert were also absent from their departments to-day. Colonel Lamont has gone to New York, and Mr. Herbert is busy moving into his new house. (From Our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, November 4.-The President went out of town to-day, and many people who expected that he would ce some important appointments were disappointed. Several members of Congress called at the White House thinking they would have a chance to put in licks in behalf of friends, but they had to come away empty-handed.

It is now said that the President will probably not consider appointments until after the elections next Tuesday, and a number of matters affecting Virginia and North Carolina will have to be delayed, notably postmasterships of the Presi-dential class that were sent up from the department weeks ago, and marked "urgent." ports have gone out from Washing-

Reports have gone out from Washington within the past week concerning Virginia matters that are inconsistent, to say the least, and people will do well to sift them carefully before they tumble to conclusions. For instance there was a publication to the effect that inasmuch as the President was much displeused over the attitude of Senator Daniel on the financial question he was thinking seriously of appointing the distinguished senator to the position on the United States Circuit Court made vacant by the death of Judge Bond, and the further sartling statement was made that the Circuit Court made vacant by the death of Judge Bond, and the further startling statement was made that the President wanted to get Major Daniel out of the way in order to make room for the election of General Fitz. Lee and Mr. Holmes Conrad to represent Virginia in the Senate. The same paper which published this remarkable story not many months ago tried to make it appear that the President was extremely anxious to have Hon John Goode elected senator, and that was given as a reason for his failure to again appoint Mr. Goode solicitor-general of the Department of Justice. According to such reasoning, the President ought now to be anxious to have Mr. Goode elected for the short term in place of General Hunton, but right there trouble comes, because if the President place of General Hunton, but right derivatively trouble comes, because if the President is rewarding friends and punishing enemies, as some people insist, he could not be consistent by going back on General Hunton, as the latter was with the Ad-Hunton, as the latter was ministration on the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law, and most naturally the President would feel like standing by the Warrenton stateman if he were really taking such a hand in Virginia polities as the publications alluded to would

ANOTHER FAIRY TALE.

Another strange romance recently related is in direct opposition to another fairy-tale, and it is that Captain Jack Hudgin, of Carolina county, who has the endorsement of the Virginia delegation for Marshal of the Eastern District, will have to be turned down because he is regarded as the particular personal friend of Senator Daniel, and also because he did not see fit to support Colonel O'Ferrall for the gubernatorial nomination; and that fact will cut a figure when the appointment is made. These stories are anything but consistent. One day the Virginia people are told that Mr. Cleveland is going to give Senator Daniel and is going to give Senator Daniel and fine life-position on the bench to get him out of the Senate, and almost the next day they are regaled with the yarn that the President is going to turn down Captain Hudgin peoples to turn down Captain Hudgin pleause he is the friend.

day they are regaled with the yarn that the President is going to turn down Captain Hudgin because he is the friend of Senator Daniel.

Senator Daniel is backing a particular friend for judge, and his friends declare he could not be induced to accept the judgeship if it were offered him, as he much prefers to serve out his term in the upper branch of Congress.

As to the marshalship, not a member of the Virginia delegation will relax in the least his efforts to secure the ap-

Mercelith, who did not join his colleagues in making the recommendation. Mr.

The Attorney-General talks as if the recommendation of the delegation will be accepted when the time comes for the appointment of Marshal Clark's successor, but if it should be decided to select some one else, the complete record will show that five out of six of the delegation's "slate" proved acceptable to the President, and that would be doing very well, in view of the claims made last spring that not more than half would pull through. It appears that the delegation had a very clear understanding with the President before they held their conference.

His hands were small and soft, showing no marks of hard work. In one pocket was found neatly bound an expensive copy of the New Testament. On a blank is spring that not more than half would pull through. It appears that the delegation had a very clear understanding with the President before they held their conference.

ELIAS AND SIMMONS.

The President, before leaving the city this morning, ordered the reappointment at once of Kope Elias and F. M. Simmons ts be Collectors of Internal Revenue for North Carolina. Mr. Elias returned to the city to-day.

The Senate committee failed even to report the nominations of Elias and Simmons, and the reappointment by the President will in the interim give Mr. Simmons a chance to take hold. It is expected, however, that the fight will be renewed in the Senate, though when it commences both Collectors will be in possession of the offices, and will have the backing of Cleveland.
